To
Lt. Commander
Queen.

Feb. 17, 1950

Debt We Can't Repay

by

Cecilio R. Bulatao

There are for all of us debts, that we never repay;
The kindly words, someone gives us any day,
When one time we need kindness which are encouraging
That wonderful smile coming from a friendly hearts
Awakening.

There are for all of us, debts that we never repay;
We owe it as long as we Lived, to a friend who gave it,
The smile which cross some face a light of unselfishness
When we are suffering so much pain and sadness.

There for all of us debts we never repay,
When in great need someone makes happy in our darkness,
Certainly it is an entry, it will never be effaced in our day,
As long as we Lived we enjoy its blesses.

There are for all of us debts, that are most unrepayable of all
When all around us, is criticism, harsh words and hatred,
It vanishes the joys of peacefulness, the friendship of our goal,
Its foundations was all shattered and can't be impaired.

Debts we never repay and yet some one wonders—
Would it be possible to discharge this debt to others?
If we give the smile, understanding who need
our friendship and all is gay;
They are the debts for all of us we can't never repay.

Please excuse
the mistakes.
thank you.